Chuck Person and his team, NSEW Connection, are gearing up for another run in the 50+ Cactus Division at this year's MSBL World Series. Chuck will be pulling double duty by managing and playing with 50+ NSEW Connection, and also playing with another team during the tournament.

He has been part of the MSBL community for five years. His introduction came when he joined a team of players who weren't yet on a roster for the World Series. That experience not only ignited his passion for the league but also led him and Brian Penn to establish NSEW Connection. Since then, he has played in five World Series tournaments and helped his team capture two championships, the 2022 MSBL World Series and the 2023 Las Vegas Open. "I enjoy playing with the team each year as we have great camaraderie," Chuck shared. "Winning the World Series championship was a pretty good moment." A retired U.S. Navy veteran, Chuck now works at D-Bats in Arizona, a role he truly enjoys. "Honestly, it doesn't even feel like work. I love it." Away from the ballfield, he lives in Arizona with his wife and their two spoiled dogs. He also has 2 married children - one living locally in Phoenix and the other abroad in Europe. Chuck plays in the Arizona MSBL when not traveling for tournaments, crediting the league with helping him stay sharp. "It keeps me in good physical condition. Also, mentally, I'm always focused on the mechanics of the game. It allows me to stay active with the guys through practices and the competition of tournaments." Looking ahead, Chuck's plans for NSEW Connection are straightforward, as they will continue to compete and enjoy the game that has brought him so much fulfillment.

Editor's Note: We followed up with Chuck, asking him some specific questions that he was happy to answer for us. (below)

Are you managing or playing in more than one week? Yes, managing the NSEW 50+ Connection and playing with another team. How long have you been involved in the MSBL? 5 years

TeamSnap App Keeps Everybody Up To Date With Scores In Real Time
Internet Has Improved Communications Between the WS Office, Teams and Players
By Tom Prendergast

Through the years, the WS staff has benefited greatly with improved internet connections and capabilities. In our early years, we used to produce an 11x14 printout of game summaries with the winning and losing pitchers. At the end of the night we would head to Kinko's and print off 1000 copies, which we would deliver to selected tournament hotels. Ten years into the tournament we switched the format to the WS Daily News and increased our distribution to around 15 hotels. We have used several different companies to keep track of our game scores and standings. This year we are using TeamSnap, which allows us to post the scores as soon as we receive them. At the same time the standings are updated, based on our seeding criteria. Which includes, head to head, runs allowed and run differential. In theory this should convey accurate information about each division. But if we put the wrong scores in then that will affect the outcome of how the teams are seeded. Whenever possible, we encourage the team captain's to double check these totals after every game. So if we discover a discrepancy we can correct it right away and it won't affect the seeding process. Most teams however are waiting until the final night of pool play games to let the office know that they have posted a few scores incorrectly. This in turn creates a situation where we are having to go into the system and manually switch scores, which will alter the seedings, based on runs allowed. At the end of the day, when all else fails, the WS Daily News always has the official standings.

MSBL World Series Spotlight on:
Chuck Pearson (NSEW Connection)

How did you become involved with MSBL? I came into the MSBL community by joining a team made up of players not already on a roster for the World Series tournament. That experience sparked both my enthusiasm for the league and led Brian Penn and me to establish team NSEW Connection.

Have you won any events? Yes, we have - 2 championships: the MSBL World Series in 2022 and the Las Vegas Open 2023

What do you do for a career? I am retired from the US Navy and work at D-Bats (honestly, it's not even work – I love it)

Please list any family details, if you wish. I live in Arizona with my wife and two spoiled dogs. I have two children, both married – one locally here in Phoenix and the other living in Europe.

Which local league do you play in at home? Arizona MSBL

Do you have a favorite MSBL World Series moment? I enjoy playing with the team each year as we have great camaraderie. Winning the World Series championship was a pretty good moment.

How has playing in the MSBL/MABL affected your life? It keeps me in good physical condition. Also, mentally as well, as I'm trying to focus on the mechanics of the game. It also allows me to stay active with the guys through practice and the competition of the tournaments

From The HardBall Magazine World Series Archives
1993 MABL National Championship Game

Houston Astros 10
Scottsdale Dodgers 5

Six years into the MSBL / MABL World Series, our numbers were off the charts and growing by leaps and bounds. In 1993, we had 193 teams, and we were playing over 500 games World Series games. While we had plenty of fields, finding enough umpires was becoming a challenge.

To bridge the gap, we were using mostly minor league umpires who were really good, but did not have a very high tolerance level when it came to players questioning their calls. During our pool play round, this led to many ejections and countless complaints about the umpires.

Apparently, drawing a line in the dirt with your bat was a no-no with the professional umpires. As our players quickly found out that was frowned upon and not tolerated at all. Keep in mind we were all a lot younger then, and some of us were quicker than others to let the umpire know when we felt they missed a call.

This came to a head during the MABL Championship game on Saturday, November 13th at Tempe Diablo Stadium. The perineal powerhouse, the Houston Astros, were taking on the upstart Scottsdale Dodgers. The Astros had their ace on the mound, Darrel Finch, and he came into the game throwing strikes! When Scottsdale leadoff batter, Steve Sogard, took a called (continued on page 3)

25+ Mountain Division
Chicago Devils batter, Seth Bayless comes through big time during his teams decisive 5th inning when he tripled home 3 runs and the Devils went on to win the semi-final game against the San Francisco Fire 17-5 on Tempe 2 in the Sunday morning contest.

From The HardBall Magazine World Series Archives (continued from page 3)

3rd strike, he groused at the home plate umpire and shook his head in disbelief.

That was enough to get under the umpire's skin, and he was ejected. Immediately, the Scottsdale manager, John Pino, and his third base coach, Tim Rondina, rushed onto the field to confront the umpire. As soon as they arrived, they were tossed. Before order was restored, two more players on the Scottsdale bench were tossed. In all, 6 players had been ejected before the first half of the inning was completed.

At the time, I was the assistant tournament director and had been watching the game from the press box. I quickly headed for the field and tried to restore order to what was becoming a gong show. After consulting with our Umpire in Chief, and tournament director, Kurt Knop, I met separately with the umpiring crew and asked them (pleaded with them actually) to reinstate the ejected players back into the game. They allowed five of the six back. Only Steve Sogard, who received the initial ejection, wasn't allowed back in the game.

The game continued without any more fireworks, the Astros won the game 10-5.

As a result, we started inviting MSBL umpires from local leagues across the country to come to Phoenix and officiate our games. Our UIC, Lou Meyers, did a fantastic job and, within two years, had replaced most of the minor league umpires with actual MSBL umpires.

This format has worked out very well for us. Today Jon Browar is our national UIC and schedules all of our MSBL World Series tournament officials. Jon is also the NCAA Division 2 National Coordinator of Umpires. If your interested in officiating MSBL games at regional tournaments or our World Series, you can contact Jon Browar by email at:
